Atmosphere-Do Good to Orchards.

The pouring rainstorm which fell yes-erany afternoon for about 15 minutes, did much good in cooling and clearing up the atmosphere. Notwithstanding the brief time that the water was descending the downpour was so rapid that the streets were flooded faster than the water could be carried away. The basement of the addition to the Utah National bank building, which Otah National bank building, which was situated just where it would catch the water rushing down the south side of Twenty-fourth street, was soon filled to the depth of eight feet. It was all over in a quarter of an hour, but reports are to the effect that even this brief shower has worked great good in the drouth stricken farming districts, and that the rain will save orchards that were about to succumb to the long dry spell.

WEDDING BELLS.

OPPORTUNITIES IN AGRICULTURE.

While the primary object of the Agdeultural college is to teach agriculture, to equip farmers for their life ture, to equip farmers for their life work on the farm and to prepare teachers and instructors for teaching agriculture in the common and high schools of the state, few of the many who attend the college appreciate the personal value of an agricultural education or value the opportunities afforded of ocquiring it in our own state. In a recent interview with a "News" reporter, Prof. E. D.
